Chapter 15: State Building and Search for Order in the Seventeenth Century - Absolutism

MAP EXERCISES

1. The Thirty Years’ War. MAP 15.1. Which were the key regions of conflict, and were they national-dynastic or religious in their importance to the participants? Identify the Protestant-core areas and the Catholic-core regions. Were they of crucial significance to the outcomes of the war? (page 440)

2. The Wars of Louis XIV. MAP 15.2. What were the geo-political ambitions of Louis XIV? What territories was he particularly interested in obtaining and at whose expense? (page 450)

3. The Growth of Brandenburg-Prussia. MAP 15.3. Compare the territories of Brandenburg-Prussia in 1415 and 1792. What particularly valuable lands were obtained? What might have been the geographical justifications or explanations for Prussian expansion? (page 452)

4. The Growth of the Austrian Empire. MAP 15.4. Describe the extent of the Austrian Empire. In the east, at whose expense did Austria benefit, and why? What role might religion have played in lessening Austria’s role in the Germanies? (page 453)

5. Russia: From Principality to Nation-State. MAP 15.5. Which nations lost territory as a result of Russian expansion? Which of Russia’s new territorial acquisitions most significantly upset the Eurasian status quo and why? What geographical history does the United States share with Russia? (page 456)

6. The Ottoman Empire. MAP 15.6. Where did the Ottoman Empire gain territory by 1481? 1521? 1556? What might be the possible explanations for those territorial acquisitions? Were the Ottomans a serious threat to most of Europe, or just southeastern Europe? Why? Was the Ottoman Empire a victim of “imperial overstretch”? Why or why not? (page 458)

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS FOR THE PRIMARY SOURCES (BOXED DOCUMENTS)

1. “A Witchcraft Trial in France”: What does this document tell us about the spread of witchcraft persecutions in the seventeenth century? What does this document tell you about the legal procedures involved in the trial of witches and how might these procedures have worked to condemn the innocent? What do these passages tell you about early modern European conceptions of justice? What does the trial record suggest about the status of women in the seventeenth century? (page 438)

2. “The Face of War in the Seventeenth Century”: What does this document reveal about the effect of war on ordinary Europeans? Compare this description to the descriptions of the treatment of civilians in other wars, even in the twenty-first century. Does Grimmelshausen exaggerate or does this description agree with the other descriptions? Are there elements of satire in Grimmelshausen’s description? If so, what are they? (page 443)

3. The King’s Day Begins-What were the messages and purpose of the royal waking and dressing ceremony for both the nobles and the king? Is the account biased? Why?
4. “Peter the Great Deals with a Rebellion”: How did Peter deal with the revolt of the Streltsy? What does his approach to this problem tell us about the tsar? Was Peter’s bloody punishment of the rebels typical of seventeenth century rulers? Why or why not? How might Louis XIV have responded to a similar incident? (page 454)

5. Oliver Cromwell-Three Perspectives-pg. 464-What motivated Cromwell’s political and military actions? How do you explain the differences in these three perspectives?

6. “The Bill of Rights”: The author states that the “Bill of Rights” laid the foundation for a constitutional monarchy? How? What key aspects of this document testify to the exceptional nature of English state politics in the seventeenth century? Why was there no “bill of rights” in France or Russia in the late seventeenth century? Was England unique, and if so, why? (page 467)

7. “William Shakespeare: In Praise of England”: Beside patriotism, what other motives may Shakespeare have had in writing this tribute to England? What are the elements in this excerpt from Richard II that makes it one of the most famous evocations of England ever written? (page 473)
